

FELINE INFLAMMATORY BOWEL DISEASE

Inflammatory bowel disease (IBD) is one of the more common problems we see in middle-aged and older cats. The most common signs are vomiting and diarrhea, which is distressing for both cat and owner. While this is a chronic disease, most cats can be well-controlled with special diets and/or medications.

Websites we recommend

Cat Friendly Homes' diarrhea in cats discusses possible causes.

International Cat Care's causes of diarrhea discusses possible causes with their treatments.

Cornell Feline Health Center's inflammatory bowel disease is a good overview of symptoms, diagnosis, and possible treatments.

Veterinary Partner's infiltrative bowel disease in cats is a good discussion of IBD and lymphoma, including tests used to make a diagnosis.